

Moshi Monsters arrives on mobile and tablet

Moshi Monsters Village has been launched globally, allowing users to play with their monsters on smartphones for the first time

Moshi Monsters - coming to a mobile near you

By Rhiannon Williams

3:10PM GMT 03 Feb 2014

Follow

1,460 followers

1 Comment

Previously available just in the UK, Moshi Monsters Village was downloaded 250,000 times during the first two weeks and has received over 12,500 reviews.

Players can personalise their own village for all their rescued little Moshlings, while trying to save them from the dastardly Dr Strangeglove, who wants to turn them into nasty Glumps.

Buster Bumblechops is on hand to help you build your own unique village, and participate in a series of mini games.

CEO and founder of Mind Candy, Michael Acton Smith said: "We wanted to create a game that sparked people's imaginations and gave them the chance to create a Moshi Village exactly as they want. This is the first of many new mobile games we're developing and we're excited about launching them this year."

Print this article

Share

51

Facebook

8

Twitter

43

Email

LinkedIn

0

g+

0

Technology News

Technology »

Rhiannon Williams »

